It is with a great deal of dismay and some anger that I read about AOL entering a lawsuit against Microsoft through their subsidiary Netscape Communications. It would appear that this is a frivolous lawsuit designed to waste the taxpayers money and enrich trial lawyers. Everyone knows that the major stockholders of AOL are "jealous" of the wealth, leadership, research and development, and success of Microsoft. All the litigants want is to get their hands on the Microsoft profits. This lawsuit is without substance and must be stopped in its tracks. Stop this unlawful pilfering of success of an outstanding American company. Stop these damn lawyers from stealing legitimate wealth. I will keep close watch on these proceedings.

I trust that leadership and intelligence will prevail during the Tunney Review. Again, Microsoft should be held without fault. Cut this crap out.

If you allow this to continue, every pissy-assed country in the world, led by Great Britain, France and Germany will be cranking up their non-factual lawsuits in hope of destroying a grand American company, Microsoft. If that would happen, you should all be charged with treason.
